Itinerary, October 5th

9:00-9:15 Opening Remarks
Dr. Jeffery Larson and Professor Stéfanie von Hlatky

9:15-10:45 Panel One - Gendered approaches in international security
This panel will seek to provide answers to the question of “What can gendered approaches bring to the study and practice of international security?” Contributors will discuss the practical value of gendered approaches and the risks associated with omitting this perspective, particularly with regard to NATO operations.

10:45-11:00 Break

11:00-12:00 Keynote Address
Lieutenant-General Christine Whitecross, Commandant, NATO Defense College

12:00-1:15 Lunch

1:15-2:45 Panel Two - Gender in international security: state of the art
This panel will consider the development of a gendered approach to international security within academic research and focus on evidence-based recommendations linked to Canadian and NATO priorities.

2:45-3:00 Break

3:00-4:00 Panel Three - Integrating gender into policy and operational planning
This panel will consider the current approaches to integrating gender in policy and operational planning with particular focus on Canada and NATO practices. The central tenet of the panel will be to take the audience through the stages of operational planning, highlighting the points at which gendered approaches could be incorporated most effectively and how the component parts are each potentially altered by incorporating a gendered approach.