

Creating a Competitive Edge: Essential Features of Successful Grants

---

May 17, 2012

10:00 a.m. – noon

ORS conference room, Fleming Hall – Jemmett Wing, 3rd Floor

Queen's Office of Research Services (ORS) is pleased to announce a new grant writing workshop series for faculty this year. Success rates at most granting agencies are on the decline; we want you to have a competitive advantage. Grant writing is your tool to access limited funding dollars. Like any writing style, there are tips and strategies to distinguish yourself. We'll offer you a framework to assess whether your grants have the necessary ingredients for success. These interactive, small-group sessions are intended to be multidisciplinary and relevant for researchers applying to a range of funding agencies.

**Note: participants are required to bring a one page summary of their research project/program to the event****

Please RSVP by May 14th to ors@queensu.ca; space is limited, so please register early.

Creating a Competitive Edge: Essential Features of Successful Grants

---

PARTICIPANT FEEDBACK

We greatly appreciate your feedback on today's session! Please take a few minutes to let us know what you think:

1. The most useful part of today's session was.....
2. The least useful part of today's session was.....
3. One suggestion for improvement is.....
4. Other topic areas that we should address in future sessions (or discuss in more depth) are....

Thank you!