

The Department of Political Studies presents

THE EVOLUTION OF PARTY DISCIPLINE IN THE CANADIAN HOUSE AND SENATE SINCE CONFEDERATION

Jean-François Godbout

Assistant Professor

Department of Political Science

Université de Montréal

Wednesday, February 29, 2012

2:30 – 4:00 pm

Mackintosh-Corry, Rm. B-313

Biography:

Jean-François Godbout is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science at the Université de Montréal. Godbout's research is primarily focused on Canadian and American political institutions. He is currently studying legislative voting in the Canadian House of Commons, and has also done work on the US Congress. His publications have appeared in such outlets as Political Research Quarterly, American Politics Research, the Canadian Journal of Political Science, and he has a forthcoming piece in the British Journal of Political Science that offers a new interpretation of ideological differences among members of Congress. For more on Godbout's work see: <https://sites.google.com/site/polgodbout/>.

