

RELIGIOUS STUDIES

Departmental Facilities

The School of Religion is housed on three floors of Theological Hall, one of the oldest buildings on the campus of Queen's University. Our facilities include seminar rooms, lounges, and offices. Our main office is located on the second floor.

The Stauffer Library, just a short walk away, has substantial holdings in religious studies, and its collection is continually being expanded.

Field of Research

Our faculty are dedicated to the academic study of religion, and are available to supervise research on a wide range of topics, cultures, traditions, and historical periods.

Graduate Student Support

The university offers a number of Queen's Graduate Awards, senior fellowships, and other financial support for students in our Master's program.

Departmental Teaching and Research Assistantships are awarded to suitably qualified students.

Graduate students are also encouraged to apply for additional funding through the annual Ontario Graduate Scholarships (OGS) and Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SSHRC) competitions.

Admission Requirements

Applicants to our program will be accepted according to the General Regulations of the School of Graduate Studies.

Normally, the minimum qualification for admission to the Master of Arts Program in Religious Studies is upper second-class standing in a four-year Honours undergraduate degree program in Religious Studies, or equivalent, awarded by a recognized university.

Master of Arts

The course requirements for our program are 27.0 units of study, which includes the year-long RELS 800, a monthly colloquium of professional development and speakers, core courses RELS 801 and RELS 802, and the final research essay RELS 898 (6.0 units)

Of the remaining 12.0 units of study, a minimum of 3.0 units must be taken from our list of Dedicated graduate courses, and a maximum of 6.0 units can be taken from our list of Cross-listed graduate courses. In any case, a minimum of 6.0 units must be taken from our list of RELS graduate courses (Dedicated and Cross-listed) offered in a particular year.

With approval from the Graduate Coordinator, a maximum of 6.0 course units may be taken from another cognate department.

Students who have not completed in their undergraduate programs the equivalent of the Queen's University course RELS 354 Theory in Religious Studies will be required to take RELS 854 either instead of one of their elective courses or as an overload in addition to the required 27.0 units.

Courses

Not all the courses listed below will be offered in any given year. Applicants should consult the Department about the courses to be offered. All courses are 3.0 credit units except RELS 898, which is 6.0 credit units.

Required Courses

RELS 800 Professional Development Seminar

Monthly seminar series for building graduate students' professional academic and alt-academic skills through workshops, Q&As, and presentations about topics including: publishing, conferencing, funding, applying for further graduate study or employment, etc. Topics will be timed to the appropriate point in the cycle of each academic year (i.e. sessions on SSHRC and OGS will occur early in Fall semester). This is a mandatory course. This course is graded on a Pass/Fail basis.

RELS 801 Core Course I: Religion and Modernity

Examines the nature of religious transition in response to various pressures for religious change.

RELS 802 Core Course II: Theory and Method in Religious Studies

Looks at recent articulations and applications of theories and methods in Religious Studies.

RELS 898 Master's Essay

A research essay. The Master's Essay must demonstrate appropriate competence in the application of theoretical and methodological approaches to a suitable research topic in the study of religion. The Master's Essay will not be subject to an oral defence but will normally be read by one member of the department in addition to the essay supervisor.

Dedicated Graduate Courses

Two of these courses will be offered each year.

RELS 808 Readings in Religion I

Advanced seminar providing detailed reading of one contemporary theme or thinker in Religious Studies.

RELS 809 Readings in Religion II

Advanced seminar providing detailed reading of one contemporary theme or thinker in Religious Studies.

RELS 884 Feminist Studies and Religious Studies

Examination of feminist theory and its application to the study of religion.

RELS 885 Religious Fundamentalisms

Religious fundamentalism is a modern phenomenon not exclusive to any religion. In the past few decades, religious fundamentalist movements have been shaping new social, cultural and political norms in a predominately secular age. The course explores theoretical aspects and examines specific case studies across various religions and cultures. Offered jointly with RELS 385 with additional work required for graduate students.

EXCLUSION: RELS 385

RELS 886 Religion and Technology

Examines the connections between religion and the rise of technology in the modern period.

RELS 887 Problems in Ancient Mediterranean Religions

An interdisciplinary study of the religions and mythical traditions of Mediterranean and Near Eastern cultures from the Bronze Age to Late Antiquity. Topics will vary according to instructor. The course will have special regard for, but not be limited to, the Levant, and the Greek and Roman world.

Cross-listed Courses

These courses will be offered concurrently with a linked undergraduate course. A maximum of 1.0 courses (6 credit units) from this list is permitted for the M.A.

M.A. students will be required to attend classes with the undergraduate students but will have separate course requirements including additional readings and different assignments. They will also meet with the instructor on occasion separately from the undergraduate students.
