GLOBAL DEVELOPMENT STUDIES

Courses

DEVS 100  Canada and the "Third World"  Units: 6.00
Introduces basic theoretical concepts of development studies, the history of global inequality, and short histories of alternative development strategies. Case studies of Canada's ties to the so-called third world will include missionaries, military, business, and aid. Canadian colonialism over First Nations peoples will introduce basic issues in Aboriginal Studies.
NOTE Also offered online, consult Arts and Science Online (Learning Hours may vary).
NOTE Also offered at Bader College, UK (Learning Hours may vary).
Learning Hours: 240 (48 Lecture, 24 Tutorial, 24 Online Activity, 144 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite None. Exclusion DEVS 101/3.0; DEVS 102/3.0; DEVS 105/3.0*.
Course Equivalencies: DEVS100; DEVS100B
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

DEVS 101  Development Studies in Global Perspective  Units: 3.00
Explores the relationship between global economic integration, technological change, environmental sustainability, political systems, and cultural diversity. Introduces interdisciplinary perspectives to complex global challenges, from poverty to climate change. The course builds foundations for ethical cross-cultural engagement.
NOTE Also offered online, consult Arts and Science Online (Learning Hours may vary).
NOTE Also offered at Bader College, UK (Learning Hours may vary).
Learning Hours: 120 (18 Tutorial, 18 Online Activity, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite None. Exclusion DEVS 100/6.0; DEVS 105/3.0*.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Students expand their world-views by considering diverse forms of knowledge and analytical perspectives that can help us understand contemporary global change and challenges.
2. Students engage in critical thinking by using interdisciplinary perspectives to explain a wide range of case studies.
3. Students reflect on the opportunities and challenges involved in producing and disseminating knowledge about the world, with a focus on the opportunities and challenges to cross-cultural communication.
4. Communicate effectively in written and oral format, with a focus on writing for different audiences and effective discussion and presentation strategies.
5. Students acquire the foundational breadth of knowledge to pursue more advanced courses in global engagement.
DEVS 102  Canada in the World  Units: 3.00
Canada in the World will help students build knowledge and analytical capacities in global development, with a focus on Canada. The course examines how processes of global development are differentiated across borders and axes of gender, racialization, and colonization. Students will explore applications of theories of global change.
NOTE Also offered online, consult Arts and Science Online (Learning Hours may vary).
Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite DEVS 101/3.0 or permission of the instructor. Exclusion DEVS 100/6.0.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Identify and explain social, political economic, and ecological axes of inequality in global development.
2. Explain key themes in Canada's role in global development.
3. Apply critical thinking to case studies in class discussion and written assignments.
5. Communicate effectively in written and oral format, with a focus on classroom discussion and presentation strategies.

DEVS 220  Introduction to Indigenous Studies  Units: 3.00
An introduction to Indigenous ways of knowing organized on a historical basis, from creation to present day, emphasizing Indigenous cultures and experiences in Canada. Students will critically examine colonialism. Indigenous perspectives will be introduced through lecture, reading and assignments, and from contributions from elders, members of Indigenous communities and Indigenous scholars.
NOTE Also offered online. Consult Arts and Science Online. Learning Hours may vary.
Learning Hours: 120 (36 Lecture, 12 Online Activity, 72 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite None. Exclusion INDG 101/3.0.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Describe historical/cultural knowledge of various Indigenous groups in Canada related to the overarching themes in the course: Language and ethics, history, colonialism, and reconciliation.
2. Reflect upon and articulate the interdependence of all elements of Indigenous holistic perspective (emotional, spiritual, mental, and physical).
3. Demonstrate understanding of Indigenous connections to the land and all elements of creation, through formal research and writing on Indigenous teachings in the course.
4. Apply holistic knowledge to critique colonization in future coursework, engage in conversation and to decolonize daily personal activities.
DEVS 221  Indigenous Studies II - Resistance and Resurgence  Units: 3.00
Indigenous Studies II - Resistance and Resurgence highlights the perpetual resilience and resistance of Indigenous communities as they grapple with gendered settler colonialism. The re-emergence of Indigenous knowledge and governance within the settler nation state, and the re-building of Indigenous communities is examined in detail through topics such as contemporary issues in Indigenous healing, art, teaching and learning, Indigenous protest, and socio-political life. Students will engage in work that aims to center the voices of Indigenous people.
NOTE Also offered online. Consult Arts and Science Online. Learning Hours may vary.
Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84P)
Requirements: Prerequisite DEVS 220/3.0 or INDG 101/3.0 or permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Discuss the historical and ongoing basis of Indigenous-settler government conflict, including how capitalism and extractivism, as extensions of settler-colonialism, function to undermine Indigenous sovereignty.
2. Discuss barriers to spiritual, mental, emotional, and physical health for Indigenous Peoples and what is needed to support the healing of unresolved historical intergenerational trauma so that Indigenous peoples can survive and thrive.
3. Critically read, analyze, communicate about, and reflect on key research conducted by Indigenous people in a variety of disciplines, and respectfully amplify Indigenous voices on issues related to gendered settler colonialism and Indigenous resistance and resurgence.
4. Identify various forms of resistance and resurgence and their impacts, and ways to engage in solidarity with Indigenous peoples and movements/collective action.
5. Develop and implement collaborative inquiry skills required to respond to essential questions related to Indigenous peoples.
6. Apply elements of Indigenous ways of knowing (emotional, spiritual, mental, and physical) to learning.

DEVS 230  The Global Political Economy of Development  Units: 3.00
Applying global political economy perspectives to key aspects of development finance. Topics include the introduction of basic economic terms, the role of the International Monetary Fund, World Bank, World Trade Organization, and the growing roles of Transnational Corporations and financial markets in development
NOTE Also offered online. Consult Arts and Science Online. Learning Hours may vary.
Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 12 Online Activity, 72 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*) or permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Describe the ways that power relations between political economic actors shape the processes and outcomes of global development.
2. Summarize the evolution of dominant development paradigms and assess the impact of their implementation in practice.
3. Outline the functions and critiques (past and present) of key institutions in the global political economy of development: the International Monetary Fund (IMF), World Bank and World Trade Organisation (WTO).
4. Summarize and evaluate the strength of key debates over development strategy, from trade liberalization to the role of NGOs and global finance based on a solid theoretical and practical understanding.
5. Evaluate motivations and impacts of current developments in the global political economy grounded in a historical understanding of the politics, policies, institutions and theory.
6. Develop speaking skills in your weekly tutorial sessions as you demonstrate your ability to draw connections between the lectures and readings.
DEVS 240 Decolonizing Development  Units: 3.00
By interrogating concepts of culture and colonialism, the course invites students to question established development narratives, confront Eurocentric biases, and envision alternative pathways for inclusive, egalitarian, and culturally sensitive approaches to global development.

NOTE Also offered online, consult Arts and Science Online (Learning Hours may vary).

NOTE Also offered at Bader College, UK (Learning Hours may vary).

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 2 or above and [DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0]).

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Unravel Colonial Legacies: Explain the cultural impacts of colonialism on global development
2. Develop Conceptual Foundations: Explain core analytic concepts related to “culture” and “global development.”
3. Analyze Diverse Perspectives: Compare diverse cultural, social, and Indigenous perspectives on development, and understand how these perspectives differ from dominant Western paradigms.
4. Apply Intersectional Analysis: Utilize intersectional frameworks to analyze how various aspects of identity, such as race, gender, class, and Indigeneity, intersect with development processes and outcomes.
5. Communicate Effectively: Develop effective communication skills, both written and oral, to articulate complex ideas and arguments related to decolonizing development.
6. Promote Ethical Engagement: Cultivate ethical and culturally sensitive approaches to engage with communities and stakeholders in the context of international development.

DEVS 250 Environmental Transformations  Units: 3.00
Examines the relationship between development and environmental change by introducing social science perspectives on themes including energy, agriculture, climate, urbanization, and water. With a focus on combining macro- and micro-analysis, the course reflects on the meaning of development in an era of global environmental transformation.

NOTE Also offered online, consult Arts and Science Online (Learning Hours may vary).

Learning Hours: 120 (18 Tutorial, 18 Online Activity, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite Level 2 or above.

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Identify the core tensions between development and sustainability goals in the 21st century.
2. Assess, contrast, and apply different social science perspectives to understand conflicts and trade offs in sustainability policy and practice.
3. Evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of diverging approaches to policymaking in sustainable development.
4. Mobilize interdisciplinary thinking to analyze case studies of sustainability in diverse global contexts.
DEVS 260  Globalization, Gender, and Development  Units: 3.00
This course is designed for those interested in undertaking a critical analysis of the gendered impact of the globalization process and development policies with a focus on women in the Global South.
NOTE Also offered online, consult Arts and Science Online (Learning Hours may vary).
Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 2 or above and [DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0]).
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Gain holistic comprehension about the gendered impact of globalization and structural adjustment policies on poor women's lives in the Global South.
2. Ability to assess how neoliberal reforms differ in their impact according to women’s ‘location’.
3. Analyze current trends in development programming and planning from a ‘gender’ lens and assess their impact.
4. Identify the role of images and stereotypes in shaping humanitarian ‘investment’ in the Global South.
5. Evaluate theoretical approaches to the impact of globalization and structural adjustment policies on women.
6. Communicate effectively and clearly synthesis of theoretical arguments in oral and written form.

DEVS 275  Global Health and Development  Units: 3.00
This course examines the nexus between global health and development with a focus on preparing students for work on contemporary health and well-being issues. It takes a multidisciplinary perspective to analyze current global challenges including environmental and social transformations and changing disease burden. Using case studies, students will learn important concepts and principles in global health and development. The course also focuses on exploring innovative approaches that bridge the global health and development divide and help in addressing difficult global health challenges.
Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 2 or above and [DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*]) or permission of the Department. Exclusion DEVS 293/3.0 (Topic Title: Global Health and Development - Fall 2022).
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Define global health, development, and their intersections from the perspectives of social science.
2. Demonstrate knowledge of key principles, concepts, and controversies in Global Health and Development.
3. Explain major frameworks and measures of Global Health, and Development and their limits to understanding contemporary global challenges.
4. Identify major global institutions and actors involved in Global Heath and Development.
6. Propose alternative strategies for addressing current and future global health and development challenges.

DEVS 280  Global Engagement  Units: 3.00
This course explores current thinking around the motivations for, and ethical implications of, working with communities on issues of social justice, inequality, and sustainable development. Students will engage in self-reflexive practices and work collaboratively to create tools and action plans for ethical global engagement in the future.
NOTE Only offered online. Consult Arts and Science Online.
Learning Hours: 120 (84 Online Activity, 36 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*) or permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
DEVS 292 Topics in Development Studies I Units: 3.00
Lectures and courses offered by regular and visiting faculty on development topics related to their research interests. Consult the departmental homepage for further details of specific course offerings each year.
NOTE This course is repeatable for credit under different topic titles.
Learning Hours: 120 (36 Lecture, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 102/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Demonstrate an understanding of the topic within the context of global development, supported by the analysis of relevant case studies, real-world examples, and current trends.
2. Describe the strengths, limitations, and gaps in the existing literature, theories, and methodologies pertinent to the chosen area of study.
3. Apply and utilize specific analytical frameworks and tools to evaluate and measure the impact of the chosen topic on global development, considering its social, economic, and political dimensions.
4. Engage in academic discussions, showcasing the ability to construct and articulate informed ideas, while demonstrating respect for diverse viewpoints and contributing constructively to the discourse.
5. Produce a well-researched paper or an equivalent assignment that reflects a comprehensive understanding of the chosen topic and its implications for global development.

DEVS 293 Topics in Development Studies II Units: 3.00
Lectures and courses offered by regular and visiting faculty on development topics related to their research interests. Consult the departmental homepage for further details of specific course offerings each year.
NOTE This course is repeatable for credit under different topic titles.
Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 102/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Demonstrate an understanding of the topic within the context of global development, supported by the analysis of relevant case studies, real-world examples, and current trends.
2. Describe the strengths, limitations, and gaps in the existing literature, theories, and methodologies pertinent to the chosen area of study.
3. Apply and utilize specific analytical frameworks and tools to evaluate and measure the impact of the chosen topic on global development, considering its social, economic, and political dimensions.
4. Engage in academic discussions, showcasing the ability to construct and articulate informed ideas, while demonstrating respect for diverse viewpoints and contributing constructively to the discourse.
5. Produce a well-researched paper or an equivalent assignment that reflects a comprehensive understanding of the chosen topic and its implications for global development.
DEVS 300  Cross-Cultural Research Method  Units: 3.00
A study of practical issues related to development research and program evaluation in development settings, using a case-study approach. Topics include information retrieval, cross-cultural research methods, basic data analysis, and results-based project evaluation.

Learning Hours: 120 (12 Lecture, 24 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0]).
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Understand the logic and debates that underlie different approaches to conducting research.
2. Develop the capacity to critically evaluate the value of research findings presented in academic literature, government/NGO reports, and popular media.
3. Have an awareness of the unique factors that need to be considered for conducting cross-cultural development research.
4. Identify research relevant to a given research topic and use it to situate your proposed research into ongoing academic debates.
5. Be aware of the ethical consideration that arise in cross-cultural development research and understand the institutional requirements for ethics in fieldwork.
6. Understand the idea of critical reflexivity and be able to identify the potential impacts of your identity as a researcher on research findings.
7. Have a basic competency in the process, logic, and structure of designing development research.
8. Understand methodologies and techniques commonly used in development-related research and an understanding of their appropriate application for answering research questions.
9. Have an understanding and basic competency in qualitative data analysis techniques.

DEVS 302  Development in Action  Units: 3.00
Development in Action focuses on institutional efforts to frame, plan, and manage development and change towards sustainable, just, and equitable outcomes. It will examine political negotiations in setting strategic development agendas and goals. It also includes critically learning about the history, evolution, and politics of development aid, and practical planning approaches used in development programs.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 2 or above and [DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*]) or permission of the Department. Exclusion DEVS 293/3.0 (Topic Title: Development in Practice - Winter 2021). Equivalency DEVS 210/3.0*.
Course Equivalencies: DEVS 210/3.0*, DEVS 302/3.0
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Demonstrate a profound understanding of international development by analyzing the intricate global architecture, including overseas development assistance (ODA), influenced by diverse development paradigms.
2. Master practical skills essential for a successful career in development. This will include crafting strategic plans and executing ideas effectively, while actively engaging with influential policy makers.
3. Evaluate and refine development projects across diverse sectors by demonstrating proficiency in assessing project impact through social justice and equity principles.
4. Create innovative solutions and develop well-considered development projects that address real-world challenges.
DEVS 306 Cuban Culture and Society I Units: 3.00
This course introduces students to Cuban society and culture. The focus is on the period from the Cuban revolution (1959) to the present. Students will examine some of the main events and highlights of Cuban history, politics and culture in this era. This is a prerequisite for DEVS 307 Cuban Culture and Society II, held in Havana.
Learning Hours: 120 (36 Lecture, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite Level 3 or above and registration in an Arts and Science Plan. Exclusion Maximum of 6.0 units from DEVS 305/6.0*; DEVS 306/3.0; DEVS 307/3.0.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Interrogate a variety of texts related to Cuban Culture and Society.
2. Reflect upon presuppositions and biases about Cuba.
3. Analyze cultural, political, economic and social formations of Cuban identity.
4. Produce a variety of texts that exemplify reflexive analysis and critical inquiry.

DEVS 307 Cuban Culture and Society II Havana Units: 3.00
An experiential learning course that takes place in Havana, in collaboration with U of Havana. Begins with pre-departure sessions at Queen's followed by two weeks in Havana. Havana instructors include professors, musicians, filmmakers, artists. Havana site visits include museums, art schools, organic gardens, galleries, medical schools, theatres. NOTE Field Trip (Havana, Cuba): estimated cost $3,200 (students must apply to take this course).
Learning Hours: 120 (120 Off-Campus Activity)
Requirements: Prerequisite DEVS 306. Exclusion A maximum of 6.0 units from DEVS 305; DEVS 306; DEVS 307.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

DEVS 340 Theories of Development Units: 3.00
Provides students with an overview of theories that underpin the development enterprise, and critiques of development, through the use of primary texts and critical appraisals.
Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite Level 3 or above. Exclusion POLS 346/3.0.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Discover Diverse Perspectives: Explore and compare various competing ideas of progress and development to gain a deeper understanding of global issues.
2. Critical Thinking Mastery: Develop strong analytical skills by examining and questioning the fundamental assumptions and theoretical foundations within arguments.
3. Holistic Knowledge Integration: Harness a rich tapestry of historical, political, economic, and social concepts to enhance both academic work and real-world social activism.
4. Effective Communication: Master the art of clearly expressing the underlying assumptions of different arguments, whether in writing or in oral form.
5. Personal Growth: Reflect on how different theoretical perspectives shape your own ideas about development and social change, fostering personal growth and awareness.
6. Cultural and Global Awareness: Recognize the limits and cross-cultural boundaries of development theories, enabling a more nuanced perspective on global issues.
DEVS 351 Labour and Global Development  Units: 3.00
Explores the relationships between the production of goods, the lives and livelihoods of workers, and socio-economic development at local, national and global levels. Issues include: the international division of labour; global commodity chains; technological change; labour markets; informal sector; genders in production; unions and labour rights.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0). Equivalency DEVS 311/3.0*.

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Cultivate self-reflexivity about the interconnectedness of labour, livelihoods, consumption, and social equity on a global scale.
2. Combine innovative analytical tools including global value chains, labour regimes, and livelihoods analysis to provide new insights into everyday social justice issues.
3. Apply interdisciplinary research strategies to propose and assess possible solutions to achieving decent work and sustainable livelihoods across local and global settings.
4. Build foundations for strong global engagement by composing and communicating policy-orientated case studies of labour and livelihood challenges.

DEVS 352 Technology and Social Justice  Units: 3.00
Technology is a pivotal factor in shaping sustainable development. Many people view technology as a crucial component of development and hold high hopes for its potential to address issues such as poverty, diseases, environmental degradation, and climate change. However, some also recognize the negative aspects of technology and how it can exacerbate existing inequalities, leading to tensions in society, especially in the distribution of resources and the creation of new social injustices. This course will examine both the effects of technological innovation on society and the ways in which technology is influenced by cultural, economic, political, and organizational factors.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0). Equivalency DEVS 330/3.0*.

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Distinguish and compare various theoretical frameworks that analyze the relationship between technology and development and social justice issues.
2. Utilize selected concepts from diverse theoretical frameworks to differentiate the impacts of technology on different stakeholders and categorize how specific technologies can address development and social justice challenges in specific contexts.
3. Enhance the skill to effectively communicate complex social and technological topics to interdisciplinary and non-specialist audiences.
4. Compose a clear and well-structured policy brief that assesses and selects relevant concepts, outlining recommended intervention strategies for technology design to policymakers.
DEVS 353 Business and Global Development  Units: 3.00
Over the past several decades, business - particularly large multinational corporations - have come to play an increasingly dominant role in global development. This course will interrogate the structures, processes and practices employed by corporations as they forge new partnerships with states, global development organizations and corporations. Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study) Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0). Equivalency DEVS 333/3.0*. Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science Course Learning Outcomes:

1. You will learn to identify and conceptualise the key tensions (productive and destructive) between business goals and development in the 21st Century at the global, national and local levels, particularly with regard to questions of power.
2. Assess, contrast and apply different global political economy (GPE) perspectives to understand the causes and outcomes of these tensions between development and business goals.
3. Analyse case studies of these business-development tensions across a range of settings introduced by the instructor and integrate these with the macro-level (GPE) questions raised earlier.
4. Synthesise the analysis of case studies and policy documents with GPE perspectives to generate and evaluate normative (prescriptive) positions towards sustainable development practices through, for example, exploring how global risk management operates on the ground.

DEVS 354 Cities and Urbanization in the South  Units: 3.00
This course examines cities and urbanization in countries in the South, looking at similarities and differences between and across regions, and the extent to which these cities connect (or not) with urban areas in the North. Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study) Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0). Equivalency DEVS 270/3.0*. Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Demonstrate the ability to critically analyze and contrast the primary empirical trends in urbanization in the Global South, highlighting their interactions with those in the Global North.
2. Evaluate the roles and impacts of major institutions and actors involved in urbanization policy and development practices within Southern cities.
3. Critically assess competing theoretical perspectives on urbanization in the Global South. Analyze their strengths and weaknesses as explanatory frameworks and compare them with urban theories prevalent in the Global North.
4. Develop advanced academic skills necessary for further studies in this field. These skills include active class participation, advanced essay and exam writing, and the ability to present complex ideas and arguments persuasively.
5. Enhance the ability to take comprehensive notes during lectures and readings. Apply these notes effectively in quizzes, exams, essays, and presentations, demonstrating a deeper understanding of course content.
DEVS 355 AIDS, Power, and Poverty Units: 3.00
HIV/AIDS is one of the most pressing development issues in the world today. This course examines the cultural, political, economic, and other social factors that contribute to its transmission and intractability, and which help to explain the differential impact of the disease upon societies worldwide. Particular attention is paid to the ways that specific social/sexual identities and practices arising from inequitable class, gender, race, and ethnic relations, affect the prevalence of HIV, the ability to contain its spread, and the human costs that it entails.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0). Equivalency DEVS 320/3.0*.

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Apply core concepts and terminologies you will need to make effective public engagements on the issues in the future (eg, seek an internship/employment, apply for grad school, write a letter to your MP)
2. Identify and describe how specific factors have differentially affected HIV transmission (heterosexism, gender, racism, xenophobia, war on drugs, free trade, etc)
3. Conduct research including identifying and consulting primary sources
4. Explain the relative effectiveness (or not) of different public health interventions including harm reduction strategies, criminalization of non-disclosure, etc.
5. Create oral and visual representations of written assignments
6. Articulate reasons for, and promising strategies to counter, political reactions against, and unintended political and social consequences of best practices and current trends and prospects
7. Apply critical reading skills to a wide range of sources including AI-generated text

DEVS 356 The Political Economy of Resource Extraction Units: 3.00
This course analyzes the political economy of resource extraction, focusing on Canadian extraction, domestically and globally. Students will critically examine historical and contemporary extraction and its role in economies, livelihoods and transnational movement (e.g. migration and colonialism), and explore alternative extractive futures.

Learning Hours: 120 (36 Lecture, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0). Exclusion DEVS 392/3.0 (Topic Title: The Political Economy of Resource Extraction - Winter 2019).

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Define resource extraction and conduct a critical examination of its role in global development.
2. Utilize political, economic, and cultural theories to conduct in-depth analyses of various resource extraction case studies.
3. Apply problem-solving tools in the field of development collaboratively to formulate comprehensive proposals addressing the social and ecological challenges associated with resource extraction.
4. Demonstrate effective communication skills by actively participating in classroom discussions and contributing to a group project.
5. Craft well-structured analytical essays that engage with diverse theories and sources while also considering issues of social justice and the production of diverse knowledge.

DEVS 357 Global Conflict and Local Peacebuilding Units: 3.00
Examining issues facing Indigenous individuals and communities that include ongoing cycles of violence, historical unresolved grief, the transmission of intergenerational trauma, and systemic injustice. Determinants of conflict, war, and disputes by navigating a complex landscape that includes race, gender, and the commodification of violence are examined.

Learning Hours: 120 (36 Lecture, 18 Individual Instruction, 66 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite Level 3 or above and DEVS 220/3.0. Exclusion DEVS 392/3.0 (Topic Title: Conflict Resolution and Peacebuilding - Fall 2018).

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
DEVS 358  Non-Governmental Organisations, Policy Making and Development  Units: 3.00
The first part of the course introduces students to critical theories and debates on NGOs governance, state-society relationships and democracy. The course begins with a broad look at theories of international development and how our understanding of the process of development has changed over time.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0). Exclusion DEVS 392/3.0 (Topic Title: Non-Governmental Organizations, Policy Making and Development - Fall 2019).

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Describe the historical changes within the NGO sector, particularly since neoliberal globalization
2. Explain the critiques of the NGO sector – especially in cross-cultural encounters – and the debates on aid and aid effectiveness
3. Articulate the challenges of working in developing countries, including political, cultural, ethical, social, organizational and other challenges
4. Assess the political feasibility of NGOs' intervention in different regions of the world
5. Apply basic principles and tools of participatory development and monitoring and evaluation methodologies in NGOs program interventions and evaluations.
6. Integrate analytical and methodological knowledge to produce a grant proposal for an NGO project

DEVS 359  Migrations, Refugees, and Development  Units: 3.00
The course examines contemporary issues 'forced' migration of people to obtain theoretical understanding of processes shaping human mobility and the debates governing inclusion or exclusion of people.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 101/3.0 or GNDS 120/3.0 or POLS 110/6.0* or POLS 111/3.0 or POLS 112/3.0 or SOCY 122/6.0). Exclusion DEVS 293/3.0 (Topic Title: Migration, Refugees, and Development - Winter 2019); DEVS 393/3.0 (Topic Title: Migration, Refugees, and Development - Winter 2020).

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Analyze, evaluate, and apply a diverse range of theoretical perspectives in the examination of forced migration and refugee phenomena.
2. Acquire proficiency in understanding international legal frameworks concerning refugees and forced migrants.
3. Critically evaluate contemporary debates on forced migration and related policy issues, drawing from an interdisciplinary standpoint.
4. Cultivate the skills to construct and present compelling oral and written arguments pertaining to forced migration, asylum seekers, and policy frameworks.
5. Demonstrate the capacity to actively participate in scholarly discussions and debates within both formal and informal learning settings, showcasing a depth of understanding and critical thinking.
DEVS 361  Policy Advocacy in Global Development  Units: 3.00
This course equips students with strategies, techniques and mindsets that help social movements and justice-oriented organizations contribute to policy advocacy. Through historical and sociological research, students apply core concepts and best practices to develop new understandings about where policy advocacy fits within a broader spectrum of transformative societal change. The course provides practical guidance for designing public campaigns aimed at legal and policy changes toward the goal of justice advocacy in global development.
NOTE Only offered online, consult Arts and Science Online.
Learning Hours: 120 (72 Online Activity, 48 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*) or permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Identify the main policy actors and institutions responsible for policy advocacy in a Global Development context;
2. Discuss strategies, techniques, and mindsets that can help social movements and other justice-oriented organizations contribute to better policy advocacy in Global Development;
3. Consider the role of positionality and self-reflexive behaviour in advocacy networks and the role of marginalized communities in advocating change;
4. Evaluate the potential limitations of policy advocacy in shaping transformative economic justice in Global Development and assess where policy advocacy fits within a broader spectrum of transformative societal change;
5. Situate approaches to contemporary policy advocacy within broader political and historical frameworks; and
6. Apply inquiry skills in exploring the existing body of historical and sociological research in policy advocacy and use academic and other genres of writing to develop and communicate new ideas to relevant audiences.

DEVS 362  Globally Engaged Experiential Learning  Units: 3.00
This course builds on DEVS 280/3.0 by facilitating an 80-hour experience related to global engagement. Students will engage with concepts of ethical engagement and relationship building as they are guided through a practical experiential learning opportunity in the field of global engagement.
NOTE Only offered online. Consult Arts and Science Online.
Learning Hours: 120 (72 Online Activity, 48 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (DEVS 280/3.0 and [Level 2 or above or registration in the GAEN Certificate]) or permission of the Instructor.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Apply standards of best practice when making decisions about potential experiential learning options.
2. Prepare for a global engagement experience by researching the political, economic, social and cultural environment of the region and organization where the experience will take place.
3. Engage in a self-reflexive process to assess the impact personal motivations, cross-cultural understanding, and race relations have on interactions and relationships during the globally engaged experience.
4. Collaborate with others before, during, and after a globally engaged experience to question historical patterns of engagement and representation, challenge assumptions and explore the complexity of issues.
5. Draw connections between theoretical concepts related to global engagement and practical experiences in the field.
6. Formulate plans for future action and engagement based on an analysis of the successes and challenges of a globally engaged experience.
DEVS 363  Contemporary Southern Africa: Development Trends and Challenges  Units: 3.00

This course first provides the historical and regional context necessary to understand urban southern Africa's contemporary struggles, then examines strategies to address key development challenges and how they may be creating opportunities for new ways of thinking about citizenship in South Africa and the Global South more generally.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite Level 3 or above.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Identify key aspects of southern African human and biophysical environments
2. Describe and recount core themes in the history of southern Africa
3. Identify and evaluate scholarly and activist traditions that debate the roles of race, class, gender and environment in southern Africa
4. Discern and explain embedded assumptions in cultural and knowledge production from and about Africa
5. Critically assess factors contributing to, or frustrating, current struggles to address key development objectives in the region and in particular, Johannesburg or other urban centres
6. Conduct original research using primary documents
7. Articulate orally and in different written forms current trends and prospects for social justice in southern Africa in relation to wider debates in the Global South
8. Acquire sufficient general knowledge of the region to feel confident among African peers in an honours-level course at Wits University, Johannesburg.
9. Apply critical reading skills to a wide range of sources including AI-generated text

DEVS 364  The (De)Colonial Struggle  Units: 3.00

Challenges students to examine how colonialism/decolonization shapes settler states and how understandings of indigeneity and sovereignty have been impacted by the relationships between the colonizer and the colonized. Addresses how both Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples can work towards decolonization through 'unlearning' and re-presenting.

NOTE Also offered online. Consult Arts and Science Online. Learning Hours may vary.
Learning Hours: 120 (36 Lecture, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite DEVS 220/3.0 or INDG 101/3.0. Exclusion DEVS 392/3.0 (Topic Title: The (De)Colonial Struggle - Fall 2020, Winter 2022).
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Describe how settler colonial realities shape current relations between the State and Indigenous Peoples and the role of decolonization in redefining these relations
2. Critically reflect on positionality and its alignment with one's roles and responsibilities in the struggle to decolonize
3. Examine how colonization has shaped the histories and ongoing lived realities of specific groups of individuals including Indigenous womxn and 2SLGBTQIA+ Peoples
4. Analyze how colonial ideology constructs the land and water, and how decolonial theories/practices aim to restore and privilege Indigenous concepts and relationships with the physical world and prioritize land and water as fundamental to all issues, personal histories, and ontologies
5. Examine how Indigenous and settler peoples work collaboratively to resist settler colonialism to move beyond it towards a different reality that centers balanced, respectful, and healthy ways of being; and
6. Discuss how Indigenous art intersects with Indigenous research and activism in ways that support Indigenous agency
DEVS 365 Trade and Investment in the Global South Units: 3.00
The future of globalization is highly uncertain. The COVID-19 pandemic has exposed the fragility of global supply chains. The rise of mercantilist policies has also brought the rules-based order for trade into crisis. In this course, students will examine this shifting landscape and what it means for global development. Students will learn about the World Trade Organization and key regional trade and investment agreements. Students will also assess alternatives to the current system, with a focus on fair trade. Finally, we will explore wildlife trade and how trade affects climate change.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (DEVS 230/3.0 or GPHY 228/3.0 or POLS 262/3.0 or SOCY 225/3.0) or permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Understand the competing theories about the potential benefits and negative impacts of “free” trade and foreign investment on development and the environment.
2. Explain how international trade and investment agreements can constrain the policy space of governments and pose obstacles to communities struggling for social and environmental justice.
3. Be familiar with proposed reforms and more radical alternatives to the current trade and investment system, including an appreciation of the fair trade movement and its limitations.
4. Engage with both academic literature (across several disciplines) and policy documents on these topics carefully and critically.
5. Be confident in communicating on these topics through formal presentations and group discussions.

DEVS 366 Land Politics and Health Units: 3.00
This course explores land politics and health promotion at local and global levels. It situates health inequalities in political ecologies of environmental appropriation, exploitation, dispossession, and repossessions. Students examine how global health can benefit from equity and ethics in human-land interaction and consider how equitable land reforms can promote healthy environments and healthy populations in communities and at the global level.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*]) or permission of the Department. Exclusion DEVS 393/3.0 (Topic Title: Land Politics and Health - Winter 2023).
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Analyze and discuss the primary conceptualizations and definition of land.
2. Demonstrate a clear understanding of the interconnections between land and health.
3. Examine and elucidate the fundamental manifestations of land politics on a global scale across the world.
4. Evaluate the health consequences resulting from land politics for diverse populations and specific demographic groups.
5. Propose strategies for reforming current land-related relationships to advance both population and global health equity.
DEVS 367  Climate Change, Disaster Risk, and Development  Units: 3.00
Climate change events and intensifying disasters are adversely impacting agriculture, water systems, urban living, and food security. They raise important questions about justice and development. This course examines framings of climate change, disaster risk, vulnerability, and resilience from fields such as risk/hazards, ecological resilience and political ecology. Then we explore how these translate into practical responses such as climate change adaptation, mitigation, resilience-building, and disaster risk reduction. Finally, we engage platforms that imagine ecologically just, 'care-ful', and convivial futures from environmental justice and degrowth-oriented scholars and movements.

Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*]) or permission of the Department. Exclusion DEVS 393/3.0 (Topic Title: Climate Change and Disaster Risk - Fall 2021, Fall 2022).

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:
1. On completing DEVS 367, the student will be able to . . . Acquire a rich and multi-dimensional understanding of the drivers and factors fueling inequalities and injustices tied to climate change.
2. Gain profound insights into the array of vulnerability framings and climate solutions put forth by a wide spectrum of climate stakeholders.
3. Critically evaluate mainstream climate policies like adaptation and mitigation through the lens of social equity and justice and develop the ability to analyze, question, and advocate for fairness in climate action.
4. Harness the power of non-traditional and digital communication methods to convey vital knowledge about climate change solutions by telling compelling stories and shape the future of climate discourse.

DEVS 368  Living Lake Ontario: From the Local to the Global  Units: 3.00
Queen's is located on one of the greatest lakes in the world, but most students have little interaction with it. This course covers a wide range of topics related to Lake Ontario, including indigenous communities, fisheries, urban planning and artistic engagement with the water. Experiential field trips give students first-hand accounts, with guest speakers from NGOs, government agencies and local First Nations. Students will also be asked to consider how local water issues are linked to global freshwater challenges, with direct reference to the UN's Sustainable Development Goals.

Learning Hours: 120 (18 Lecture, 18 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite Level 3 or above. Exclusion DEVS 293/3.0 (Topic Title: Living Lake Ontario: From the Local to the Global - Fall 2023).

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Demonstrate a deep understanding of Lake Ontario's watershed and hydrology.
2. Appreciate the intricate history of First Nations in eastern Lake Ontario, analyze the enduring impacts of colonialism, and consider the opportunities and challenges of Reconciliation in relation to the Lake and its shoreline.
3. Recognize the interplay of social, economic, political, and environmental factors that mold contemporary discourse surrounding Lake Ontario and its long-term sustainability.
4. Identify the key institutions and stakeholders involved in research, management, and funding initiatives pertaining to Lake Ontario.
5. Explain the connections between Lake Ontario and global water, climate, and equity issues, especially as they pertain to the Sustainable Development Goals.
6. Develop interdisciplinary academic skills to engage with the multifaceted nature of Lake Ontario, including participation in field trips, essay composition, and the presentation of ideas in innovative formats that extend beyond their core disciplinary focus.
7. Apply the acquired skills from this course to future personal and professional endeavors related to its content in volunteer and/or professional roles.
DEVS 380  Experiential Learning in Global Development  Units: 6.00
This course offers students the unique opportunity to follow a course-based learning program on a specialized topic within global development studies while simultaneously pursuing an overlapping and closely coordinated experiential learning opportunity in the same field.
NOTE At least one month before the beginning of term during which the work will be undertaken, students must submit an application to the department.
NOTE This course is repeatable for credit under different topic titles.
Learning Hours: 240 (36 Seminar, 12 Online Activity, 72 Off-Campus Activity, 120 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite Level 3 or above and permission of the Department.
Course Equivalencies: DEVS 380; DEVS 380B
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Course-based LO: Build knowledge and critical understanding of the key themes, concepts, methodologies and approaches in the specialized area of study.
2. Course-based LO: Identify relevant sources of information applicable to the field and demonstrate the ability to synthesize data from multiple sources, including academic texts, media, government documents, and non-governmental reports.
3. Course-based LO: Develop strong written communication skills through a variety of critical analysis assignments.
4. Course-based LO: Compare and contrast different analytical approaches within the specialized field to understand strengths and limitations of current debates.
5. Course-based LO: Develop transferable skills including writing for varied audiences, data management, and balancing academic and professional time commitments.
6. Experiential LO: Build thematically specific practical skills that complement and advance course-based learning in the specialized area of study.
7. Experiential LO: Develop self-confidence in taking academic learning into workplace or practical experience settings.
8. Experiential LO: Communicate the complexities of lived experiences to groups of peers through post-placement presentations.
9. Experiential LO: Reflect on the strengths and limitations of literature in the subject area based on practical experience within the field.
10. Experiential LO: Develop professional skills including adaptability, self-management, time management, and collaboration through the experiential learning placement.

DEVS 392  Topics in Development Studies I  Units: 3.00
Seminars offered by regular and visiting faculty on development topics related to their research interests. Consult the departmental homepage for further details of specific course offerings each year.
NOTE This course is repeatable for credit under different topic titles.
Learning Hours: 120 (36 Lecture, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 102/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0]*) or permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Investigate the existing literature, theories, and methodologies relevant to the area of study.
2. Demonstrate an advanced understanding of the specific topic within the context of global development, as emphasized by the faculty member's research interests.
3. Choose appropriate analytical frameworks and tools to assess the impact of the selected topic on global development, considering its social, economic, and political dimensions.
4. Actively engage in meaningful discussions and debates, demonstrating the ability to articulate complex ideas and make substantial contributions to academic discourse on the topic.
5. Develop a comprehensive research project, paper or an equivalent assignment that reflects a sophisticated understanding of the chosen topic and its implications for global development, incorporating insights gained throughout the course.
DEVS 393  Topics in Development Studies II  Units: 3.00
Seminars offered by regular and visiting faculty on development topics related to their research interests. Consult the departmental homepage for further details of specific course offerings each year.
NOTE This course is repeatable for credit under different topic titles.
Learning Hours: 120 (24 Lecture, 12 Tutorial, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 3 or above and [DEVS 100/6.0 or DEVS 101/3.0 or DEVS 102/3.0 or DEVS 105/3.0*]) or permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Investigate the existing literature, theories, and methodologies relevant to the area of study.
2. Demonstrate an advanced understanding of the specific topic within the context of global development, as emphasized by the faculty member's research interests.
3. Choose appropriate analytical frameworks and tools to assess the impact of the selected topic on global development, considering its social, economic, and political dimensions.
4. Actively engage in meaningful discussions and debates, demonstrating the ability to articulate complex ideas and make substantial contributions to academic discourse on the topic.
5. Develop a comprehensive research project, paper or an equivalent assignment that reflects a sophisticated understanding of the chosen topic and its implications for global development, incorporating insights gained throughout the course.

DEVS 410  Work Study Placement in Development Studies  Units: 6.00
Provides students with first-hand experience working with an agency involved in international development, either in Canada or abroad. The placement will normally be for 10-20 weeks, to be negotiated with the sponsoring agency. Students are required to attend preparatory meetings, prepare a work-study proposal, a research paper on the placement and maintain a journal on a continuing basis while on their placement. In addition to academic requirements, students are required to enroll in the Queen's Emergency Support Program, attend pre-departure orientation and complete Queen's Off-Campus Activity Safety Policy (OCASP) requirements.
NOTE Students are normally responsible for all costs associated with participation in this course.
Learning Hours: 260 (60 Group Learning, 200 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite Level 3 or above and registration in the DEVS Major Plan and departmental approval in advance from the Head of Global Development Studies. Corequisite DEVS 411/3.0. Exclusion DEVS 420/3.0; LLCU 432/6.0.
Course Equivalencies: DEVS410;DEVS410B
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Apply Theoretical Knowledge: Apply theoretical concepts learned in DEVS coursework to real-world development scenarios and challenges.
2. Practical Skills Development: Develop practical skills such as project management, intercultural communication, and problem-solving through hands-on experience.
3. Professional Growth: Demonstrate professional growth by adapting to the work environment, meeting deadlines, and effectively collaborating with colleagues in a development agency, whether in Canada or abroad.
4. Cultural Competence: Cultivate cultural competence by working in diverse settings, appreciating different perspectives, and respecting local cultures and traditions.
5. Ethical Considerations: Navigate ethical considerations and dilemmas encountered during their work placement, considering the broader implications for development practice.
DEVS 411  Post-Placement Seminar in Development Studies  Units: 3.00
Required for students who have successfully completed the course requirements for DEVS 410. The course will provide a forum for students to debrief and to critically examine their placement experience. Evaluation based on presentation, participation, journal synthesis and a final report.

Learning Hours: 120 (36 Seminar, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite Level 3 or above and registration in the DEVS Major Plan and DEVS 410/6.0 and departmental approval in advance from the Placement Coordinator, Global Development Studies. Exclusion POLS 598/3.0. One-Way Exclusion May not be taken with or after DEVS 420/3.0.

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science

Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Uncover the Real-world Complexity of Development and Activism: Reflect on the tension between classroom learning and hands-on experience, gaining an understanding of how theory and practice intersect.
2. Spotlight Inequality and Empower Change: Evaluate the impact of international development initiatives on local communities and propose real change.
3. Ethical Considerations: Uncover ethical dilemmas encountered during their work placement, considering the broader implications for development practice.
5. Career Development: Evaluate the relevance of their work placement experience to their career goals and aspirations in the field of international development.

DEVS 420  Study Placement in Development Studies  Units: 3.00
Participation in an organized educational or cultural exchange, either i) one term of studies at a developing-country university, or ii) an exchange program in a developing-country setting with an organization such as Canada World Youth or Shastri Indo-Canadian Institute for at least 6 weeks. Students are required to prepare a work-study proposal, a risk assessment of their placement and attend a pre-departure orientation. Assessment will also be based on a journal and final report.

NOTE Students participating in the study period at the University of Witwatersrand (Wits) in Johannesburg will pay an ancillary fee for programming (e.g. cultural field trips, busing). Students will pay all travel and living costs while studying at Wits. The study period at Wits is mid-July to end of August.

Learning Hours: 124 (40 Group Learning, 84 Private Study)

Requirements: Prerequisite Level 3 or above and registration in the DEVS Major or Joint Honours Plan and departmental approval in advance from the Placement Coordinator, Global Development Studies. Exclusion DEVS 410/6.0; LLCU 432/6.0.

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
DEVS 492  Topics in Development Studies I  Units: 3.00
Seminars offered by regular and visiting faculty on development topics related to their research interests. Consult the departmental homepage for further details of specific course offerings each year.
NOTE Taught concurrently with DEVS 8XX/3.0.
NOTE This course is repeatable for credit under different topic titles.
Learning Hours: 120 (36 Lecture, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite (Level 4 or above and registration in a DEVS Major or Joint Honours Plan and [DEVS 300/3.0 or DEVS 340/3.0]) or permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Comprehensive Understanding: Develop a comprehensive understanding of interpretive techniques, critical methodologies, and theoretical questions within a specialized area of development studies (This can be amended accordingly to specific course offering).
2. In-Depth Exploration: Conduct thorough examinations of key development issues (once again, this can be modified specific to a course offering), delving into their historical, economic, social, and political dimensions.
3. Advanced Analytical Skills: Develop advanced analytical competency to critically assess development theories and methodologies in addressing significant global challenges. (Again, this can be adjusted to match specific course offerings).
4. Interdisciplinary Insights: Cultivate an interdisciplinary perspective by integrating insights from sociology, economics, political science, gender studies and other relevant disciplines.
5. Effective Communication: Enhance both written and oral communication skills to articulate and defend nuanced perspectives on select development issues (again, this can be tailored to suit a particular course), whether individually or within a group setting.
6. Critical Engagement: Encourage active and critical involvement in contemporary development debates, policies, and practices, fostering the ability to contribute constructively to ongoing discussions in the field.

DEVS 493  Engaging Development Studies  Units: 3.00
Seminars offered by regular and visiting faculty that blend academic analysis with applied learning such as policy advocacy, community engagement, or coordinated experiential learning activities. Consult the departmental homepage for further details of specific course offerings each year.
NOTE Taught concurrently with DEVS 862/3.0.
NOTE This course is repeatable for credit under different topic titles.
Learning Hours: 120 (36 Lecture, 84 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite Level 4 or above and registration in a DEVS Major or Joint Honours Plan.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Depth and Breadth of Knowledge: Students build focused knowledge in the specialised area of study and explore practical applications of that knowledge.
2. Application of Knowledge: Students synthesize data from multiple sources, including academic texts, media, government documents, and non-governmental reports and apply this data to a practical application
3. Knowledge of Methodologies: Students assess methodologies for learning and problem solving within the specialised area based on reflection from their practical application.
4. Communication Skills: Students develop strong written and oral communication skills through written assignments, seminar discussions, and outputs orientated towards diverse communities of practice.
5. Awareness of Limits of Knowledge: Students reflect on the strengths and limitations of literature in the specialised area with close consideration of its utility for practical applications.
6. Autonomy and Professional Capacity: Students develop transferable skills including writing for varied audiences, adaptability and self-management by balancing academic analysis and practical applications of knowledge.
DEVS 501 Honours Thesis in Development Studies Units: 6.00
The course will involve a critical review of the literature on a clearly-defined topic relevant to development, a synthesis of ideas, and a final thesis under the supervision of a faculty member.
NOTE The student must identify a willing supervisor from DEVS or a cognate department and receive permission of the Department of Global Development Studies.
Learning Hours: 240 (24 Individual Instruction, 216 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite Level 4 or above and registration in a DEVS Major or Joint Honours Plan and a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.50 and permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Conduct an extensive and critical review of the existing literature related to a well-defined topic within the field of development studies.
2. Synthesize and integrate diverse ideas, theories, and findings from the literature to develop a comprehensive understanding of the chosen topic.
3. Formulate a clear, well-structured research question or thesis statement that addresses a specific aspect of development relevant to the chosen topic.
4. Design and execute an independent research project, culminating in the production of an original and substantial thesis.
5. Apply appropriate research methodologies, data collection, and analysis techniques to investigate the chosen topic effectively.
6. Demonstrate advanced academic writing skills by producing a coherent, well-organized, and scholarly thesis under the guidance of a faculty supervisor.
7. Present and defend their research findings and methodology in an informal setting, such as a research seminar, showcasing their ability to articulate and defend their research decisions and outcomes.

DEVS 502 Directed Readings in Development Studies Units: 3.00
This course enables a student or a group of students to explore a body of literature on a selected topic in development. The focus may be by theme, by region or by academic approach and can span the humanities, social sciences and environmental sciences.
NOTE The students are responsible for approaching a professor with whom they wish to work and who is willing to undertake this project.
Learning Hours: 120 (12 Individual Instruction, 108 Private Study)
Requirements: Prerequisite Level 4 or above and registration in a DEVS Major or Joint Honours Plan and a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.50 and permission of the Department.
Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
Course Learning Outcomes:
1. Demonstrate an in-depth understanding of the selected topic in development studies, encompassing both theoretical and empirical aspects.
2. Conduct comprehensive literature searches and critically evaluate academic sources related to the chosen development topic.
3. Analyze and synthesize diverse perspectives and theories from the humanities, social sciences, and environmental sciences to gain a holistic understanding of development issues.
4. Apply interdisciplinary approaches to problem-solving, drawing upon insights and methodologies from various academic fields.
5. Develop advanced research and analytical skills, including the ability to identify gaps in existing literature and propose potential avenues for future research.
6. Effectively communicate their findings and insights through written reports, presentations, or discussions.
7. Demonstrate the capacity to work independently or collaboratively, depending on the course structure, and manage time effectively to meet project deadlines.
DEV594 Independent Study  Units: 3.00
Exceptionally qualified students entering their third- or fourth-year may take a program of independent study provided it has been approved by the Department or Departments principally involved. The Department may approve an independent study program without permitting it to be counted toward a concentration in that Department. It is, consequently, the responsibility of students taking such programs to ensure that the concentration requirements for their degree will be met.

Note: Requests for such a program must be received one month before the start of the first term in which the student intends to undertake the program.

Note: Also offered at Bader College, UK.

Requirements: Prerequisite Permission of the Department or Departments principally involved.

Offering Faculty: Faculty of Arts and Science
