

DAN COHEN AND COLLEAGUES ON INCOME SHARE AGREEMENTS

Drs. Dan Cohen, Emily Rosenman (Penn State), and Tom Baker (University of Auckland) were asked to write a blog post about their research for the Student Borrower Protection Center (SBPC). Published on August 23, 2022, the post outlines how Income Share Agreements (ISAs) can create predatory debt relationships between ISA providers and students. Please read the full blog here:

Income Share Agreements: Predatory Inclusion into a Deeply Unequal Education System

In the News

David Gordon (Arts and Science, Department of Geography and Planning)

Global News:

Building better suburbs

Dr. Gordon has his research cited about how 67.5 per cent of Canadians live in suburbs. People who plan and build cities need to think about the demographics of those who live in suburbs.

MEET THE RIVER 2022

The Belle Park Project invites everyone to come to the second annual Meet the River on Saturday, Sept 3rd from 2:00-4:30. Check out the great line up of talks and creative activities for all ages!!

