

GPHY 401 GETS INTERRED

Last week, Elizabeth Nelson and students in GPHY 401 explored the Lower Burial Ground at Queen and Montreal Streets on the grounds of St. Paul's Anglican Church, with the assistance of the Lower Burial Ground Restoration project team, during their Halloween class. Students had the opportunity to explore under the church hall with Sue Bazely and received a tour of the grounds from John Grenville. The course theme for the week was "Hauntings and Ghostly Matters," so this experiential learning outing was a well-timed experience!

FALL PREVIEW 2023

Saturday, November 4, 2023, to Sunday, November 5, 2023, marked this year's Queen's Academic Fair/Fall Preview. Faculty and students from the Department of Geography and Planning volunteered to meet prospective students and promote our programs. Many thanks to the following individuals for supporting the event: George Bevan, Bhavya Bogra, Leah Brown, Payge Callaghan, Dongmei Chen, Dan Cohen, Alex Couto, George Hodges, Melissa Lafrenière, Colin Lloyd, Shannon Lyne, Cedelle Pereira, Neal Scott, Prateeksha Vadali.

We appreciate you giving your time!

SURP à Montréal

30 SURP graduate students enjoyed a two-day field trip to Montreal this past weekend, with alumni guides Tyler Wood MPL'09 (MEM museum) and Michael Szilagyi MPL'10 (Re: Public Urbanism).

Above: Students at the newly opened MEM museum got a behind-the-scenes tour.

Top: Following Frederick Law Olmsted at Parc Mont Royal with Professor Dave Gordon.

Bottom: Tyler and Mike touring students through Montreal's Quartier des Spectacles.

Due to unforeseen circumstances, Edward Struzik's guest lecture scheduled for Friday, November 10, 2023, has been cancelled.

We'll share details when we are able to reschedule this event. Thank you for your understanding.

TAKE OUR KIDS TO WORK DAY

Wednesday, November 1, 2023, was Take Our Kids to Work Day! In Geography and Planning, Lindsey Morey's daughter, Sophia, spent the day in Mackintosh-Corry Hall. Sophia spent time in the FaBRECC Lab learning the instruments, chatted with faculty Mark Stoller and Maxx Hart about their disciplines, completed a space tour of the department, and helped John Fraser update the digital hall display. Thanks for spending the day with us, Sophia!

On November 4, 2023, the Faculty of Arts and Science presented “Think Grad Studies Day” at Mitchell Hall. The purpose of the event was to learn all about the benefits of completing grad school within Arts and Science at Queen’s. Participants had the opportunity to learn from current students and staff (as well as the Associate Dean of Graduate Studies), mix and mingle at a catered lunch, and then take a tour of Queen’s and Kingston. Many thanks to Dan Cohen, Nahuel Deltrozzo, Sam Poirier, and Neal Scott, who volunteered their time to represent the Department of Geography and Planning.
