May 30 to June 5 in Kingston is both Cycling Week and the Commuter Challenge. The Sustainable Living Series will be offering two online sessions to help the Queen’s community take part. See full details further in the Newsletter.

As we move into the summer months (June/July/August), the weekly Newsletter will move to a bi-weekly publication schedule. Please send material you would like to see included in the Newsletter to my attention (knoxj@queensu.ca) by noon the Friday before. Thanks everyone and, please, have a healthy, safe and fun summer!

Congratulations to Mikaela Coon (MPL Class of ’22) who has won a TCREW Scholarship from the Toronto Commercial Real Estate Women.

Dave Gordon:

The Ottawa Citizen interviewed Dave regarding whether the pandemic is causing a migration to the suburbs: https://ottawacitizen.com/news/national/people-are-leaving-cities-during-the-pandemic-but-what-does-this-actually-mean

Newmarket Today quoted Dave on the need for more diverse housing types to meet the affordable housing challenge. https://www.newmarkettoday.ca/local-news/gta-is-facing-a-tricky-question-can-housing-become-affordable-again-3817839

Postmedia and the National Post ran an article on COVID and cities. http://postpandemic.nationalpost.com/p/1

Two online learning sessions on sustainable transportation will take place during the Kingston Commuter Challenge and Cycling Week.

On June 2, Adam Pennock of Kingston Transit will lead a Kingston Transit Information Session from 2:30-3:30 p.m. over Zoom. Pennock will help attendees learn how to best use the city’s transit system and how to make use of the Transpass program.

On June 3, Neal Scott of Cycle Kingston will lead a session on Cycling in the City from 2:30-3:30 p.m. over Zoom. This session will provide important tips on cycling safety, and the benefits of cycling as a sustainable commuting option.

Learn more about the Sustainable Living Series and find out how to register for the events on the Sustainable Queen’s website.
