

The Department of History, Faculty of Arts and Science at Queen's University invites applications for a Tenure-track or tenured faculty position in North American Indigenous History. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor, with a preferred starting date of July 1, 2019.

The successful candidate will join a growing number of scholars within the Faculty of Arts and Science who possess research and teaching expertise in Indigenous issues. Queen's University sits on the traditional territories of the Anishinaabe and Haudenosaunee peoples and is committed to promoting awareness of the histories of Indigenous Peoples. The successful candidate will be expected to teach broadly in North American Indigenous history and to supervise graduate students in the Indigenous histories of the territory now known as Canada. Thematic focus and period of specialization are open.

The Department of History is committed to providing opportunities for new faculty to develop a strong teaching and research profile. Support for course development and delivery is provided by the Department, the Queen's Centre for Teaching and Learning, and the Faculty of Arts and Science. Support for new faculty's research programs includes a Research Initiation Grant, grant writing workshops and review services, funding support for graduate students through the Queen's Graduate Award program, and one-to-one mentorship from senior faculty members.

Candidates must have a PhD at or near completion prior to the start date of the appointment. The successful candidate will provide evidence of academic excellence and research promise. The candidate will also display a strong potential for outstanding contributions to teaching. Applicants whose past experience has prepared them to contribute to Indigenous initiatives at Queen's are especially encouraged to apply. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. This position is subject to final budgetary approval by the University.

The University invites applications from all qualified individuals. Queen's is committed to employment equity and diversity in the workplace and welcomes applications from women, visible minorities, Aboriginal peoples, persons with disabilities, and LGBTQ persons. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, Canadian citizens and permanent residents of Canada will be given priority.

To comply with federal laws, the University is obliged to gather statistical information as to how many applicants for each job vacancy are Canadian citizens / permanent residents of Canada. Applicants need not identify their country of origin or citizenship; however, all applications must include one of the following statements: "I am a Canadian citizen / permanent resident of Canada"; OR, "I am not a Canadian citizen / permanent resident of Canada". Applications that do not include this information will be deemed incomplete.

A complete application consists of:

- A cover letter (including one of the two statements regarding Canadian citizenship / permanent resident status specified in the previous paragraph);
- A current Curriculum Vitae;
- A statement of research interests;
- A statement of teaching philosophy and experience (including teaching outlines and evaluations if available);
- A writing sample, consisting of a published or unpublished chapter, article, or conference paper; and,
- Three letters of reference to be sent directly to Dr. Rebecca Manley, Chair of the Department of History at history.chair@queensu.ca (with 'Indigenous History Position' and the applicant's name in the subject line).

The deadline for applications is December 3, 2018.

Applicants are encouraged to send all documents in their application packages electronically as a single PDF to Dr. Rebecca Manley at history.chair@queensu.ca, although hard copy applications may be submitted to:
