

Co-hosted by Levana, MSGP & OPIRG-Kingston

Remembrance, Multiculturalism and 'honour killings'

EVE HAQUE

York University
Department of Languages, Literatures and Linguistics / Graduate
Program in Social and Political Thought

This presentation will examine the memorialization in Pelham – a small town in rural Southern Ontario – of the 'honour killing' of Aqsa Parvez which took place in Mississauga, Ontario in 2007. In particular, discourses of multicultural tolerance will be examined to understand how they operate as a central strategy in the articulation of forms of exclusion such as Islamaphobia and concrete assertions of white settler national identity and solidarity.

Nov 21 5:30 pm Watson 217

