

The Centre for the Study of Democracy & Diversity,
Queen's Faculty of Law & The Department of Political Studies
Present

Stephen Macedo

Immigration and Social Justice

Stephen Macedo is the Laurence S. Rockefeller Professor of Politics at Princeton University. Working in the fields of political theory, ethics, public policy, and law, Stephen specializes in topics related to liberalism, democracy and citizenship, diversity and civic education, religion and politics, and the family and sexuality. He recently published Just Married: Same-Sex Couples, Monogamy, and the Future of Marriage (Princeton University Press, 2015).

Professor Macedo will be giving a presentation on the significant intersection of immigration and social justice.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 18TH, 2017

4:15_{PM}-5:45_{PM}

Mackintosh-Corry Hall, Rm B313
