NOTE: From the Queen's University Finance website: "An honorarium payment to an individual is considered salary and is therefore taxable income. When the University is issuing this type of payment, it is the responsibility of Financial Services to ensure that legislation set out by Revenue Canada is followed. If the payee is a non-resident of Canada, the University is required to withhold 15% tax. For non-residents the funds will be issued in USD in the equivalent amount, minus the 15% withholding tax."
