

SEEKING CHILD/ADOLESCENT/FAMILY
AUTONOMOUS PRACTICE PSYCHOLOGISTS &
SUPERVISED PRACTICE CANDIDATES

The Centre for Interpersonal Relationships (CFIR-Ottawa) is currently seeking autonomous practice or supervised practiced psychologists who work with children, adolescents, and families to join our growing team of clinicians.

We are seeking individuals who are open to learning or are already trained in a variety of treatment options (e.g., CBT, DBT, MBT, attachment-focused, psychodynamic, play therapy), and are interested in working within an integrative framework. Experience and interest in conducting psychological assessments is preferred (e.g., psychoeducational, ADHD, autism-spectrum). We provide a supportive environment for knowledge sharing, continuing education, and peer consultations.

Child-adolescent-family psychologists with an existing private practice interested in discovering the numerous benefits and advantages of a group practice are welcome to contact us for further information (e.g., administrative and marketing services provided to clinicians, competitive associate fees, professional development and training opportunities).

For individuals interested in supervised practice, contact us to find out why numerous supervised practice clinicians are choosing to make CFIR their home for their new practices (e.g., opportunities to receive training in any CPO-recognized competency areas, a steady flow of clients that ensures completion of the licensing process, support in preparing for CPO licensing exams and the oral exam).

Psychologists and supervised practice candidates who are interested in becoming a CFIR associate can submit their CVs to Dr. Aleks Milosevic, C. Psych. (Centre Director, CFIR-Ottawa) at aleks.milosevic@cfir.ca, and Brent Mulrooney, C. Psych. (Centre Director-CFIR-Toronto) at brent.mulrooney@cfir.ca
