

AVAILABLE POSITIONS:

Posting Date: 11 February 2021

Job Title: Post-Doctoral Fellow

Department: Psychology, Faculty of Arts and Science

Description of Area or Topic of Research: Cognition in Psychosis and Mood Disorders - This fellowship is open to clinical psychology fellows who are interested in conducting research on how early life events, neurocognitive abilities, and cognitive effort are associated with functioning and course of illness in depression. This longitudinal project is funded by the Canadian Institutes for Health Research. The PDF will have opportunities within the primary project to receive training, and supervise graduate students, on retrospective assessment of adverse childhood events, neurocognitive functioning, and experimental tasks measuring cognitive effort avoidance. In addition to the specific roles for the funded study, the PDF would have the option of additional collaboration on studies of cognitive remediation in mood disorders and schizophrenia, CBT for those with psychosis, stress and neuroimaging, and the development of novel research studies.

Supervision and Academic Unit: The PDF would be supported by a team led by Christopher Bowie, Ph.D., C.Psych., and collaborators Kate Harkness, Ph.D., C.Psych., and Tom Hollenstein, Ph.D.

Remuneration: $55,000
