

Inclusion and Anti-Racist Pedagogy

Guest Speaker Webinars and Q&As

The Centre for Teaching and Learning is pleased to welcome two invited visiting scholars who have agreed to share their perspectives on, and approaches to, inclusion and anti-racist pedagogy.

.....

.....

Anti-Racist Pedagogy: An Introduction to Key Concepts and Practices Webinar

Facilitated by Dre Choi
Friday, February 19, 2021; 9:30 – 10:30am, Zoom

A limited number of opportunities for university instructors to gain a better understanding of concepts of race, racism, anti-racism, and anti-racist pedagogies through professional development workshops and training sessions within their respective institutions has been identified as one of the key barriers to effectively implementing anti-racist initiatives in Canadian Universities (Henry and Kobayashi 2017; Dua and Bhanji 2017). In this interactive webinar, we will explore key terms and theories in the

“I am no longer accepting the things I cannot change”: Anti-Racist Pedagogies and Inclusion in Teaching and Learning Webinar

Facilitated by Yasmine Djerbal, Ph.D. Candidate, Cultural Studies Program, Queen’s University
Friday, February 26, 2021; 9:30 – 10:30am, ZOOM

Building on Angela Davis's words "I am no longer accepting the things I cannot change", this webinar is an invitation to "change the things we can no longer accept". Instructors and educational staff will be invited to learn, discuss, and share inclusive teaching practices and anti-racist pedagogies upon which to create intentional, meaningful, and committed change in teaching and learning spaces. Geared towards participants from a range of disciplines, identity positions and teaching experience, this session practice of anti-racist pedagogies, as well as provide a brief overview of critical concepts underlying anti-racist pedagogical approaches such as race, racism, and anti-racism. With an introduction to ideas and best practices for embedding and supporting anti-racist pedagogies within university classrooms and departments, participants will be encouraged to reflect on the curriculum they teach and brainstorm ways they could integrate anti-racist pedagogies into their own classroom settings.

For complete information and to register

Anti-Racist Pedagogy: An Introduction to Key Concepts and Practices – Q&A

Friday, February 19, 2021; 1:00 – 2:00pm, Zoom

Dre will be available for an informal hour-long discussion with peers and educational professionals. Whether you attended their webinar or not, you are invited to join in the conversation.

Register Now

will help build on prior knowledge and develop participants' anti-racist strategies in classroom environments. Different aspects of anti-racism and inclusion will be discussed in relation to curriculum design, teaching practices, assessment, and disciplinary epistemologies.

*If you require an accessibility-related measure (e.g.: sign language interpretation, captioning, printed copy of the presentation, or any other accessibility-related measure), please indicate so in the registration form.

For complete information and to register

Anti-Racist Pedagogies and Inclusion in Teaching and Learning – Q&A

Friday, February 26, 2021; 1:00 – 2:00pm, Zoom

Yasmine will be available for an informal hour-long discussion with peers and educational professionals. Whether you attended her webinar or not, you are invited to join in the conversation.

Register Now