CALENDAR DESCRIPTION

This course critically examines the main tenets of contemporary sociological theory. Key sociological concepts are studied in a variety of contexts spanning from the micro to macro levels of social action. Although heavily reliant on the main historical developments in sociology (Marx, Weber and Durkheim), emphasis is placed on post-war developments in sociological theory.

AIMS
This course enables students to critically engage with some of the core positions and debates within contemporary sociological theory. It aims to provide an advanced forum for the examination and discussion of several varieties of theorizing in Sociology, the philosophical issues and problems intrinsic to the social sciences, the continued salience of classical traditions and the plurality of responses to them. Students will be encouraged to situate their own work within these positions, and most importantly be open to exploring the very different ways in which theory conceptualizes the social world and the possibilities of inquiry.
Organization

The course does not claim to be comprehensive. It will place broad theoretical approaches into some context (e.g. ‘what problem or puzzle is this theorist/tradition seeking to understand, and why’?), examine a combination of primary and secondary texts, and concentrate on critically examining these in terms of their internal coherence and relationship to the social world. To do this, each session will begin with the instructor providing a detailed overview of the essential background and development of key ideas. We will then concentrate on discussing the texts and the questions that arise. The emphasis in this course is with theoretical interventions that have been relatively transformative at a broad level, as opposed to those directed toward very specific phenomena.

Learning Outcomes

At the end of this course students should be able to do the following:

- Understand some of the key directions in sociological thought in the post-war period.
- Identify significant ontological and epistemological differences in sociological theorizing.
- Clearly articulate and discuss core sociological concepts verbally and in written form.
- Develop clearly expressed, critical questions about how different theories are constructed.
- Demonstrate an understanding of how theoretical orientations relate to objects of social research.

Assessment

The assessment for the course is as follows:

- Seminar Participation (knowledge of reading and clarity of communication): 20%
- Reading Reflections (3-page reflections, weekly): 30%
- Final Paper (15-page comparative essay): 50% Due December 13th

More detail on these assessments will be provided in the first session.
Grading

All components of this course will receive numerical percentage marks. The final grade you receive for the course will be derived by converting your numerical course average to a letter grade according to Queen’s Official Grade Conversion Scale:

EXTENSIONS
The Senate Policy for Accommodations for Students with Disabilities was approved at Senate in November 2017

https://www.queensu.ca/secretariat/sites/webpublish.queensu.ca.uslcwww/files/files/policies/senateandtrustees/Academic%20Considerations%20for%20Extenuating%20Circumstances%20Policy%20Final.pdf). Graduate students can request special consideration for extenuating circumstances that will have or have had an impact on an academic requirement or requirements.

Graduate students request short term academic accommodation by completing one of two forms (pdf 163KB) and submitting the form and any required additional documentation to the Graduate Coordinator (or delegate).

- For consideration for a brief absence of up to 48 hours, the student shall complete and submit the Self-Declaration of Brief Absence (up to 48 hours) form.
- For academic consideration (for up to 3 months) for extenuating circumstances the student shall complete and submit the Request for Academic Consideration for Extenuating Circumstances form. The student shall submit additional documentation if/as requested by the Graduate Coordinator.

If you need to request academic consideration for this course, you will be required to provide the name and email address of the instructor/coordinator. Please use the following:

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY
Academic Integrity is constituted by the six core fundamental values of honesty, trust, fairness, respect, responsibility and courage (see www.academicintegrity.org). These values are central to the building, nurturing and sustaining of an academic community in which all members of the community will thrive. Adherence to the values expressed through academic integrity forms a foundation for the "freedom of inquiry and exchange of ideas" essential to the intellectual life of the University (see the Senate Report on Principles and Priorities http://www.queensu.ca/secretariat/policies/senate/report-principles-and-priorities).

Students are responsible for familiarizing themselves with the regulations concerning academic integrity and for ensuring that their assignments conform to the principles of academic integrity. Information on academic integrity is available in the Arts and Science Calendar (see Academic Regulation 1 http://www.queensu.ca/artsci/academic-calendars/regulations/academic-regulations/regulation-1, on the Arts and Science website (see http://www.queensu.ca/artsci/academics/undergraduate/academic-integrity), and from the instructor of this course. Departures from academic integrity include plagiarism, use of unauthorized materials, facilitation, forgery and falsification, and are antithetical to the development of an academic community at Queen’s. Given the seriousness of these matters, actions which contravene the regulation on academic integrity carry sanctions that can range from a warning or the loss of grades on an assignment to the failure of a course to a requirement to withdraw from the university.

Reading

_The required readings are in OnQ. It is essential that you are completely familiar with them prior to each seminar. The material on the website is copyrighted and is for the sole use of students registered in SOCY901. The material on this website may be downloaded for a registered student’s personal use, but shall not be distributed or disseminated to anyone other than students registered in SOC901. Failure to abide by these conditions is a breach of copyright, and may also constitute a breach of academic integrity under the University Senate’s Academic Integrity Policy Statement._
