Partnership Guiding Principles

Principle #1 – Training and Education Leads to Employment:

- It is recognized that all learners have access and awareness of opportunities and pathways that lead to advancement and meaningful employment and self-employment.

- It is imperative we ensure First Nations are aware of the value and variety of the career paths and opportunities in working in the mineral and mining sector, in addition to other resource-based sectors.

- To ensure training and education in the classroom and the workplace comply with all health and safety and occupational standards.
Partnership Guiding Principles

Principle #2 – Maximum Beneficial Use of Involvement:

- Recognition of the importance of continued public investment in knowledge creation, distribution, and the importance of quality.

- Understanding the need to achieve maximum beneficial use of the knowledge and skills generated through public support; and including the better training of an aboriginal workforce, the desire for economic competitiveness, to address social priorities/social innovation and to create healthy, sustainable communities. Whatever the reason, benefits appear only when knowledge is disseminated and put to productive use.

- An overall commitment in taking steps that contributes to this objective.
Partnership Guiding Principles

Principle #3 – Responsible Use of Knowledge:

- The need for all parties to share equitably.
- The need to ensure that results are used in ways that also serve the learners and communities best interest.
- The need to organize collaborations in ways that foster their long-term vitality and transferable benefits.
- Assurance that ethical aspects of the initiative are taken fully into account.
Partnership Guiding Principles

Principle #4 – Diversity in the Workplace:

- The partners are committed to developing a diverse workplace and providing a work environment in which everyone is treated fairly and with respect.
- Ensure employment is offered on the basis of merit.
- Ensure decisions regarding employment are not based on attributes unrelated to job performance.
