

TRAQ upgrade – September 2016

Dragonfly upgrade impacts Awards, Certifications, and Research Portal modules, and includes new options for information exchange and integration. Bidirectional events forced new controls, new content, and prompted a strategic series of usability improvements. Look for changes to event form setups, event screens, attachments screens, home page, quick links, logs, and export formats. This latest release also offers new product info popups, safeguards to reduce view state errors, configurable text area and large text area character limits, reviewer comment popup formatting options, and controls for ordering application and event form listings. Dragonfly's most salient improvement is its bidirectional events.

Researcher Portal – Revised Home Screen

Additional quick links to handle new event capabilities required more optimal way to display home page content. Quick links have been re-labelled for clarity, and role blocks stretch full screen. When action required quick links apply, the role block is expanded by default and the action required quick link is highlighted in red and indicated by asterisk. When action required quick links do not apply, the role block is collapsed by default.

Example of the Researcher Home screen is displayed below:

Role: Department Signing Authority

Example above shows Research Portal Home page of Researcher who also has a role of Department Head. His role of Principal Investigator and Project Team member shows links that require his attention. On the other hand collapsed link of Department Head indicates that there are currently no pending applications requiring approvals in his Department Head role.
